

Question	Where is the home stadium of the team who won the 1946 World Series championship?
Answer	Busch Stadium
ChatGPT + CoT	Step 1: Identify the team that won the 1946 World Series championship. The team that won the 1946 World Series championship was the St. Louis Cardinals. Step 2: Determine the home stadium of the St. Louis Cardinals during that time. The St. Louis Cardinals' home stadium during the 1946 season was Sportsman's Park. Therefore, the possible answer to the question "Where is the home stadium of the team who won the 1946 World Series championship?" is: - Sportsman's Park.
Reasoning Paths	1946 World Series → sports.sports_team.championships → St. Louis Cardinals → sports.sports_team.arena_stadium → Busch Stadium 1946 World Series → sports.sports_team.championships → St. Louis Cardinals → sports.sports_team.arena_stadium → Roger Dean Stadium
RoG	Based on the reasoning paths provided, the home stadium of the team who won the 1946 World Series championship is Busch Stadium. This conclusion is based on the following path: 1. 1946 World Series → sports.sports_team.championships → St. Louis Cardinals → sports.sports_team.arena_stadium → Busch Stadium The reasoning path leads us to the St. Louis Cardinals as the team that won the 1946 World Series, and Busch Stadium is the stadium associated with the St. Louis Cardinals. Therefore, Busch Stadium is the home stadium of the team that won the 1946 World Series championship.